

Troutt will 'lower taxes,' says higher tax needed

By JIM CARRAVALLAH
While dangling a promise of lower taxes before the Romulus voters, members of the Troutt team ticket admitted it will take more taxes, through general obligation water and sewer bonds to improve the city's tax base by luring industry.

The Troutt team of mayor and council candidates said it would cut the city's water and sewer bond retirement millage from seven to zero, yet admitted last Friday it may have to float a $10 million bond issue, at taxpayer expense, to build up the city's water and sewer system as a lure to industry.

"If the taxpayers of Romulus will pass a bond issue for school construction," said Terry L. Troutt, candidate for mayor in Romulus, "We can see to it they will pass a bond issue for water and sewer lines and roads, with a display of good leadership."

Troutt, and his fellow candidates said Romulus has not advanced in development for the past three years.

"THERE IS NOT one single shopping center or theater to take advantage of the millions of people who will pass through Metropolitan Airport each year," said Gary Bingamen, candidate for city clerk. "The people all go to Detroit."

The average Romulus median family income, according to the 1970 census estimate, is only $7,890.

The candidates said that Romulus must offer something to lure industry and commerce into the community.

Water and sewer lines, along with a good road system are a must to bring industry to the community, Troutt said.

And, water and sewer lines with roads will not be built unless the taxpayers dig into their pockets to pay off construction bond issues.

WHILE STATING Romulus needs to build utilities, Troutt has so far promised to cut Romulus' taxes by five mills ($5 per $1,000 in assessed valuation).

Last week, the candidates — Troutt, Bingamen, John Lewkowicz for treasurer, Richard Butz, Jack Trumble, Joan Lee, Robert H. Matrin and Lnnng Coleman for council — revealed plans to levy a two mill tax for a $1 million recreation program, after promising to reduce all water and sewer system millage from seven to zero.

The candidates said everyone would benefit from the Recreation program, which would see eight parks constructed throughout the community, because the net cost of government to Romulus taxpayers will be five mills less than under the present administration.

This week, however, the candidates admitted new millage would have to be levied to pay off general obligation water and sewer construction bonds for a projected $10 million water and sewer program, deemed essential to Romulus' future industrial expansion.

AS AN EXTRA incentive to development, the team members have promised to take a longer, harder look into the city's zoning laws.

"Chatham owned land across Wayne Road from Romulus High School," said Butz, "but I know for a fact, the concern will be selling the land because it would be too difficult to develop under Romulus' present zoning ordinances."

"The ordinances require set backs which make it unfeasible for development."

"I don't know what the set backs are, but I will look into the zoning ordinances to see if

Romulus will get tough with park troublemaker

By JIM CARRAVALLAH
Romulus Mayor Hyle Carmichael and the city council have ordered a "get tough" policy on youthful party goers in Kennedy Park.

After the Romulus City Council passed a resolution ordering all parks closed at 11 p.m., Sheriff's Road Patrol officers closed down Kennedy Park at midnight last Wednesday, quelling a minor disturbance with two arrests.

Two men, aged 22 and 21, were arrested for being drunk and disorderly after attempting to attack two road patrol cars.

ONE MAN officers said, shouted: "Let's get the sheriff pigs, there's only one car."

The man attacked the two officers in the car, and two other officers in a back-up vehicle, and was arrested.

Another man attacked a road patrol officer, and was placed under arrest.

Both were kept in the Wayne County Jail overnight.

"AT MY SUGGESTION, the council ordered all city parks closed at 11 p.m.," Carmichael said.

"We only had the police to carry out the order."

"It's too bad, but last year, I received few, if any complaints from citizens around Kennedy Park."

"Now I get complaints about automobiles racing and screeching tires, and kids playing music from speakers on top of their cars late at night."

"AFTER WE cleared the park last Wednesday, I got some calls from parents who complained that kids have no place to go at night."

"They can go to the city parks as long as they're orderly, but for the time being, we're closing the parks at 11 p.m."

Carmichael said the disturbances last year were

In Romulus Busing angers parents

By DALE GOWING
School children in the Wellesley and Birch Run Townhouse Cooperatives in Romulus are faced with another school change next fall — the fifth switch in four years for some students — and their parents are angry.

They are angry with the Romulus Board of Education which decided June 12 that all children attending Cory Elementary School — less than a five-minute walk from the Wellesley Cooperative — will be transferred to another school, and that the rest of the 800 children from the two cooperatives will have to attend new schools also.

"We can't understand why they (board of education) decided to move our kids," said Charles R. Jenish, speaking as a representative for the two cooperatives at Monday's special meeting of the school board. "Here we have a perfectly good school right across the street from us and the board decides it wants to move the kids."

"SOME OF OUR children have been moved as many as seven times in the last four years."

The apparent cause of the problem stems from classroom overcrowding and safety factors of walking to and from school, board officials say.

Gerald Budd, board secretary, said three of the Circuit Court to rule on sheriff service halt

By HENRY CANTIN
Wayne County Circuit Court will be asked to rule on the legality of a proposed discontinuance of the Wayne County Sheriff Department's road patrol service to out-county areas.

The Wayne County Board of Commissioners, which controls the budgetary funds for the Wayne County Sheriff's Department has funded the road patrol division until Aug. 31 of this year.

This decision of the board of commissioners in line with its decision two years ago to eventually discontinue the free service to communities using the patrol.

THE COMMISSIONERS requested a "cost-sharing" by the involved townships: Brownstown, Canton, Huron, Northville, Plymouth, Sumpter and Van Buren.

The supervisors of these and other townships are fighting the commissioners' move to end patrol services.

They contend the residents of their communities pay taxes and are entitled to road patrol service.

A resolution calling for court action, if necessary, recently adopted by the Van Buren Township Board of Trustees is another step in the battle to retain the road patrol service.

AT THE JUNE 12 session of the Van Buren Township Board, Supervisor G. Elton Gollwitzer was instructed to take a "firm position" with

Col. Odell to tell story to Enterprise-Roman readers

When the Macomb County POW returned to his wife, Shirley, and children, Carol, 13; Barbara, 11; Paul, 9; and David, 6 - he talked of activists, bombs, and society.

And with moistened eyes, he said: "Newsreels and reports brought us to near tears when we saw what was going on back home while we were trying to maintain the ideals of our country."

FOR COL. ODELL, next Wednesday has a special meaning, it's July 4th.

At the Odell home, our nation's date of birth is a symbol of faith... and the colonel's account of life in the POW camp is about faith. It starts today on Page A-4.

'The hell' of POW camp will not leave memory

By MITCH KEHETIAN
Enterprise-Roman Editor

"As I completed the roll, dropping the aircraft nose toward the ground, I felt a slight thud at the belly of the plane. I realized I had taken a hit and that my plane was on fire..."

That day of despair took place at 10:48 a.m. Oct. 17, 1967 - somewhere over North Vietnam. The man recalling the "hit" was Lt. Col. Donald E. Odell... a prisoner of the North Vietnamese for nearly six years.

Col. Odell, 38, is a free man now, but the hell of a Communist POW camp will never leave his memory.

THE HARRISON Township POW was among those released by the North Vietnamese through an agreement reached between this nation, Hanoi and Red China.

Since our POW's have returned, some so-called Americans have accused returning POW's of being brainwashed by the Administration; while others, who claim to have inspected Communist POW camps, told the news media "our boys are being treated with extra care..."

Through special arrangement with The Macomb Daily, a sister PANAX publication, the readers of the Enterprise-Roman, starting today, will read a six-part series on Col. Odell's life as a prisoner of Hanoi - and the kind of treatment he and other American airmen sustained by the so-called gentle Communists.

The informative and sometimes brutal account of Col. Odell's experiences, was edited by Maury Vincent, editor of the Macomb Daily.

WITH the assistance of Vincent, a veteran of the North Africa and Italian campaign during World War II, Col. Odell's six-part series takes you into a cell with him and his fellow POW's and makes you since as he relates the brutal interrogations.

And the narrative series will give you a sense of pride in the courage and determination of these men not to lose faith in themselves, their country or their fellow Americans.

Michigan Health Department sponsors environment program

Dozens of Michigan students are doing something positive for the environment and have their summer employment needs met again this year through a nearly unique environmental program financed by the Michigan Department of Public Health (MDPH).

Under a grant of state and federal monies from the Department of Public Health, 43 Michigan high school and college students were hired this month to begin work on 10-week-long environmental health surveys.

The 1973 grant is the third awarded to the Michigan Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association, which administers the grant in cooperation with the Lansing-based Michigan Student Environmental Confederation (MSEC).

STUDENTS working in the 1973 program are concentrated in five areas: environmental mapping surveys in Genesee, Ingham, Kent, and Kalamazoo Counties, a rodent survey in Wayne County (excluding Detroit), and a water-sewer survey in Sumpter Township of Wayne County. Students work in cooperation with local health officials in each area.

The environmental mapping projects are designed to obtain and use data for program planning purposes at the local level. Environmental (block-by-block) appraisals will provide information on housing and environmental deficiencies — how many dwelling units, vacant lots, etc., there are, their relative condition and concentration, etc.

Environmental mapping surveyors drive to their survey area and then walk while surveying each block according to exterior housing conditions explained in a training session at the beginning of the program.

Rodent surveys will determine the extent of infestation in the survey areas, based on rodent signs (dead rats, burrows, chewed surfaces, feces, etc.). Clear data on such signs aids local health officials in establishing the need for new programs, controls, and local participation in solving the problems identified.

THE WATER-SEWER survey is an outgrowth of concern over restricted surface drainage outlets and a lack of a public sewer system in Sumpter Township, since the area has a perennial high ground water condition which hinders operation of private sewage disposal systems.

The students will locate malfunctioning sewage disposal systems and hazardous private water supply systems.

After they complete the week-long training session with the local health department and MSEC, the students work almost entirely on their own. They may contact the health department or MSEC for help with problems or to turn in data, but they are not directly supervised.

THE USE of such an approach has proved to be effective in the past. The students accept the responsibility of directing their own work.

Detroit man faces manslaughter charge

Charles Denomie, 30, of 19701 Stout St., Detroit, charged with manslaughter following the motor vehicle death of a 2-month-old Sumpter Township girl, will face a pre-trial examination July 2.

Denomie stood mute when arraigned before 34th District Court Judge James B. Stone in Romulus. A plea of not guilty was entered pending the upcoming hearing.

According to police, Denomie was involved in a two-car crash last Sunday (June 17) on Willis near Karr Road in Sumpter Township.

The car he was driving collided with a vehicle operated by Ralph W. Rumble, 25, of 50333 Willis. Rumble's daughter, Victoria, died of head injuries as a result of the accident.

Rumble was taken to Wayne County General Hospital where he is listed in good condition. His wife, Sally, 27, was treated and released.

Denomie and his passenger in his car also were treated and released. Police charged Denomie with improper lane usage and improper license plates following the crash.

age just can't be continually moved like this."

"TOO MANY moves to children before the fourth grade can be psychologically harmful," said Jenish, whose five-year-old son Chris also faces being bused for the third time in the fall.

The parents within the cooperative are prepared to take the matter to court, and insist they will keep their children home in the fall rather than have them bused.

"We are prepared to take this to court as a class-action lawsuit," Jenish said. "We think the people who live in a district should be allowed to attend the schools in that district."

"The children take more time waiting for the bus than it would take to walk to school. If our kids could walk to Cory, it would save time."

The question of safety also was a key issue, according to the board. To let children cross several of the streets leading to the schools their parents want them to go to is "extremely dangerous."

"HISTORICALLY, we've always wanted our children to be able to walk to school," explained Board Treasurer Carl W. Morris, "but as Romulus grew, roads became unsafe so all kindergartners were bused."

"A child's life is worth many millions of dollars and the State Board of Education pays us to pick up these students on unsafe roads."

At some elementary schools in Romulus, parents serve as volunteer crossing guards to halt traffic and allow children to cross safely to nearby schools. The parents of Wellesley and Birch Run children want to do this but could not get the board's approval.

"There's no reason we can't have ladies act as crossing guards like they do at other schools," Jenish said.

All kindergartners in Romulus are currently bused, with only students in higher elementary grades permitted to walk.

BECAUSE OF the overcrowding factor, the board felt it would be more economically feasible to again move the students by bus.

Jenish said he could not rule out the possibility of integration as a motive for the board's decision to bus the children.

"I can only speak for myself, but I really can't rule out that possibility," he said.

At present, Wellesley students attend three different elementary schools, as do Birch Run children, and many of the children have moved more than once a year.

Three mothers told the board that their children "could not take another move" and that one little girl "cries herself to sleep at night" because of it.

MRS. ANITA JACOBS, a four-year resident of Romulus, has a daughter facing her fifth move, as does Mrs. Wendy Edmonson. Mrs. Bonny Pollard's child, however, will be making his seventh school change in the last four years.

Lovette said the board would consider the parents' plea and make a final ruling at a later meeting.

Citizen group backs 5 council candidates

A group of Romulus citizens will back five council candidates in the Aug. 7 primary election.

missioners and effective date of such action be such that the courts would be able to determine the legality of the move before the road patrol is terminated.

The resolution states "there is no way possible under the present tax set-up for the townships involved to provide their own police protection."

Township administrators contend that the state law provides for law enforcement in unincorporated areas by the county sheriff.

THE RESOLUTION added that "if action is taken on their part (county commissioners) to leave the areas unprotected, the resulting chaos can only be attributed to the work of the county commission."

Van Buren Township is holding the county responsible for adequate law enforcement until other legal means are established, officials say.

The Public Safety and Judiciary Committee of the Wayne County Board of Commissioners called a meeting for 2 p.m. today to consider plans for security provisions at the Detroit Metropolitan Airport and proposals to extend sheriff's road patrol and investigative activities.

The Huron Township Board of Trustees recently adopted a resolution proposing that if the road patrol must be discontinued, then the equipment now being used by the sheriff's department in out-county areas be sold at auction to the units of local governments within Wayne County, to help local units of governments to build police departments within their local control, thus relieving the county of the financial burden of the road patrol.

For council Montgomery won't run

Fred M. Montgomery, 29, who filed petitions for a spot on the Aug. 7 primary election ballot for city council, has withdrawn from the race.

"After talking with the present mayor, and city clerk, and checking into the expense of a campaign, I decided it would be better to campaign for the mayor and his staff, as well as see that some new people are put on the council," he said.

Dear Fellow Romulus Citizens:

I wish to express my sincere gratitude to all those people who signed my nominating petition for the City Council and for their encouragement, support, and offers of help.

Since all the people of Romulus share the same dream of an improved image of our city along with the want of better roads and housing, more recreation, and the much needed commercial development, etc., I sincerely hope that we will continue in the future as we have in the past, to work together toward these goals.

Please let us not forget to encourage others to express their opinions and needs as this is where Romulus will show progress. Those willing to work to "make it happen" can make it happen.

Positive efforts will directly benefit all of us.

Area educators are unhappy about venereal disease bill

By DALE GOWING

A bill passed by the Michigan House requiring public schools to instruct students on the dangers of venereal disease (VD) is logically sound, say area educators, but they're not overly happy with the way the instruction would come about.

Passed by almost a 2-to-1 margin recently by the House and referred to the Senate for approval, the bill allows for dissemination of information on venereal disease and would apply to public schools across the state.

It states: "Each district shall adopt and implement a venereal disease education policy in cooperation with the State Department of Education." Parents could have their child excused from the classes on request, however.

IN ESSENCE, the bill, if it becomes law, would require school systems to establish venereal disease education policies to fit their individual needs - but it would not be optional. And the idea of the state telling schools what classes to teach strikes a sour note with some administrators.

"The idea to educate students about venereal disease is sound, but I'm not overly enthused about having the state tell us what we should do," said Romulus High School Principal Joel Carr.

"I admit students need education on this, but at Romulus we operate a required health class for ninth grade students generally, and next year we plan to have an advanced class," he said.

Carr said the health class includes segments of instruction or discussion on VD, but does not deal exclusively with it, and believes the amount of instruction offered there is sufficient.

"I don't feel the Senate or the State or Michigan should start dictating what we do," he explained. "There should be some local prerogative involved in deciding whether to have a class like that."

"THIS YEAR it's VD, next year maybe they'll be requiring us to teach classes on the wearing of seat belts - that's a pretty autocratic government."

Carr's attitude was reflected by other area principals - some with stronger feelings, others with a more passive opinion - but they all agreed that some sort of VD education is necessary in the schools.

And perhaps the happiest person of all about the House's passing of the bill is Cindy Ford, State Public Health representative and VD investigator.

Miss Ford deals with hundreds of VD cases a year through the Wayne County Health Department and hopes the Senate approves the bill to make VD instruction mandatory in schools.

"VENEREAL DISEASE is the biggest public health problem we have," she said, "and instruction in the schools is absolutely necessary if the rates of the disease are to go down."

She said the number of cases of gonorrhea, the leading venereal disease, has been steadily increasing throughout the country, and that in the last 10 years there has been a 15 per cent rise every year.

"We can't turn our backs on the problem any longer," she said. "It's extremely important that the bill becomes law. There are so many young people coming in our clinic every week who are not in the least bit aware of what VD is, how they get it and if they have it."

"We've found there is a three per cent prevalence rate among women who don't know they have VD," Miss Ford said.

She said the biggest problem in fighting VD in Michigan is lack of funds.

"ALMOST ALL the money channeled into VD control goes to the study of syphilis, she said. "Hardly any goes for gonorrhea, so there's been a steady rise in the number of cases of gonorrhea."

State Rep. Edward E. Mahalek (D-Romulus) has vigorously urged the VD education bill through the House and strongly hopes it gains the Senate's approval.

"We've got to do something to control the disease," he insisted. "There have been more cases reported during the last few years than during the war years."

Mahalek disagrees with educators who dislike the idea of having the state dictate curricula.

"THE STATE has always had the right to tell the school systems what types of curricula they should have," he said.

we can change them, if elected."

THE CANDIDATES also promised to reestablish the position of industrial coordinator in Romulus.

"Because of the council-we lost an industrial coordinator," said Troutt. "We need an ambassador to sing Romulus' virtues to industrial concerns."

"The mayor of Dallas came to Michigan, to lure industries from Detroit to Dallas."

"We should be doing the same, only for Romulus, because, I'm convinced Romulus has much to offer."

Another job the Troutt pledges to take on is garnering more taxes from Metropolitan Airport.

"THEY OPERATE a hotel at the airport, and because it's classified as a concession, it's not subject to local taxes," said Bingamen, who is the director of sales as well as the food and beverage manager for the Sheraton Metro Inn.

"A more dynamic administration would fight to get more taxes from the airport, (owned by Wayne County) particularly from the money-making operations."

Butz added, "It's unfair to such concerns, as the Metro Inn, the Holiday Inn and the Ramada Inn that they pay taxes, while a competitor does not have to pay taxes, because it sits behind an imaginary line around the airport."

while he's serving as mayor. "SINCE I have to keep the liquor business in operation for three years before I sell it, and I haven't had it in operation, I can't sell the business if elected."

"So the only other alternative is to withdraw from the race, or resign if elected."

Bizek was first elected to office in 1954, when he won a spot on the Romulus school board. In 1955, he was also elected township treasurer.

He resigned the school board seat in 1957, and was elected supervisor in 1963, serving until 1969, when he was elected county supervisor for Romulus. He held the position until 1970.

Bizek withdraws from mayor race

Former Romulus Township supervisor and Wayne County Commissioner Edmund Bizek Sr., 56, threw his hat into the ring in the race for mayor of Romulus, and then withdrew it.

Bizek filed petitions for office last Tuesday, but decided by the Friday deadline for withdrawing he had enough of the problems of government, and wanted to settle down with his own business.

"There were many people who wanted me to run," Bizek said. "But, I decided I wanted to get into private business, rather than government again."

BIZEK, WHO was given a renewal on a liquor license by the Romulus City Council in 1970, says plans are nearing completion on his proposed bar.

"We're proceeding okay, after several months of delays," Bizek said. "I hope to start construction next month."

"The liquor license was one of the main reasons I decided not to run."

"I was told that a mayor, since he is the chief law enforcement officer of the city, cannot operate a liquor license

In spite of Watergate

Nixon's strong hand keeps nation moving

WASHINGTON — Through all the clangor and smoke produced by the Watergate scandal, one thing has become reasonably clear: President Nixon continues as before to formulate national policy on major question of state.

This is worth stating at a time when the Washington scene has become confusing to everyone, including the people paid to watch and report upon it.

Indeed, the whole Watergate story, in some respects have taken on an Alice in Wonderland quality. Great national upheavals are predicted which never take place - or at least they haven't yet. The wilder rumors suggest that the whole political landscape and all the power relationships of Washington have been completely transformed. However, there is no evidence of this.

In one breath people are told the president's prestige has been largely destroyed and that if he is not forced from office he can be nothing but the lamest of lame duck presidents for the next three and a half years.

Yet it was President Nixon who called the shot the other day on the stiff new anti-inflation program. Congress has debated this problem for months, but the decisive action came from the White House.

Soviet Communist Party Leader Leonid I. Brezhnev came to the United States for top-level negotiations with President Nixon, not with the senate foreign relations committee. Indeed, Brezhnev seemed somewhat puzzled by all the fuss over Watergate.

Congress, of course, has an important role to play in the American system of government and so does the Supreme Court. But the way Nixon has functioned in recent days makes nonsense of all the loose talk of "cutting the office of the presidency down to size" and about the emergence of Congress as the dominant branch of the government.

This does not mean that Watergate should be whitewashed. Quite the contrary. If conservatives pretend the spreading scandal referred to collectively as Watergate represents nothing serious to the well being of our society, they will damage their credibility the way many liberals did theirs when they pretended the new left excesses of a few years ago — the riots, bombing threats and flag burnings — constituted nothing worse than youthful high spirits.

One overriding fact has to be faced. Whether done with or without the president's knowledge, the misdeeds of people connected with his administration constituted a betrayal of the conservative, middle-of-the-road voters who put Nixon in office.

Among other things those people voted for vicil order and a government operating strictly within the law and conforming in every way to the American system of checks and balances.

It is true rioting in the streets and on the campuses largely has stopped, although violence-prone radicals are showing signs of stirring again.

Yet the big question Watergate poses is whether there was a tragic over reaction by people motivated originally by a desire to restore order.

There is an old saying that "hell is paved with good intentions." But for the good of the conservative cause, that saying should not be used to excuse Watergate. The United States is not some rickety banana republic or middle east dictatorship. Our government should be able to function efficiently without misusing sensitive police and intelligence organs, destroying evidence, attempting to suborn witnesses or engaging in perjury.

Conservatives should be among the first to face this truth. The great philosophic concept conservatives have given to the American system holds that governments which are not strictly limited in their powers tend to drift into abuses which eventually kill liberty for all of us.

In many countries across the world people less fortunate than we are have seen what happens when unchecked power strangles liberty. It is not a pretty sight.

Voice of the people

A walk for compassion

To the Editor
Project Concern wishes to thank the people of Romulus for their support in the April Walk for Mankind.

Thousands of hours were volunteered so that the Walk could be successful, and we are particularly grateful to Walk Director Phil McNett and his dedicated Committee for their tremendous leadership.

For all the miles walked on April 28, the distance covered really represented a bridging of the space between people from all parts of the world, regardless of nationality, who hurt the same, who laugh the same, and who need the same kind of love.

We pledge our best efforts to convert all those aches and blisters into life-giving medicines and human compassion. You have moved us one step closer to the ancient Greek ideal: To tame the savageness of man, and make gentle the life of the world.

Simply, thank you.

Cheers for 'bond' victory

To the Editor:
As a candidate for the Romulus School Board one needs a great deal of manpower, support, and most of all votes to be successful. In my recent and initial attempt to gain a seat on the school board so many people were instrumental in my campaign, to reach each one individually as I would like to is almost impossible. Therefore, these few words are written to express my sincere appreciation for the support given me on Monday, June 11 by 922 Romulus citizens.

Some were concerned about my length of residency here and my previous residency in Detroit, while the thinking citizens in Romulus demonstrated tremendous confidence in me with their vote. For this I am grateful, you showed that a person's concern for quality education should be considered along with residency. I feel an obligation to you for this and I will continue to attend the Board meetings and stay aware of the happenings in our school system.

Although I was not successful in my attempt to gain a seat on the board - the bond issue was passed, and to me that in itself is a great victory. There is a definite need for more schools and better facilities added to our existing schools.

Again, thanks for your vote of confidence and I'll see you at the School Board Meetings.

Good people news comment

To the Editor:
In our society today, very seldom do we hear about the "good people" or "good things" that have happened in Romulus.

Many people (ourselves included) feel we are very fortunate to have Mr. Richard Kruse as our band director at the Junior High School. We can't say enough about the fine job he has done with the Cadet Band and the Symphonic Band.

If you were fortunate enough to attend the Spring Concert, you heard the Symphonic Band play "Battle Hymn of the Republic." It was a beautiful and touching arrangement. It made one feel very proud to be an American.

Thank you Mr. Kruse, for doing such a fine job with our young people.

Col. Odell tells his story

Copyright 1973 by The Macomb Daily

Just before dusk on the evening of October 17, 1967, the day my F-105D fighter-bomber was shot down as I flew my 17th bombing mission over North Vietnam, I stood before a large group of villagers, my hands tied tightly behind me, naked except for my shorts.

Already bruised and bleeding from beatings by the villagers who had surrounded me when I parachuted from my burning plane into a rice paddy, I had just been pulled from a thatched hut by four stocky militiamen who pointed their weapons toward a path which wound beyond the hut to a ribbon of dirt road.

I assumed this would be the point at which a vehicle would take me into Hanoi. I wondered if I would be taken to the famed Hoalo Prison (named the Hanoi Hilton by earlier prisoners of war). I also wondered at the absence of the villagers who had been clamoring at me all day. Yet I saw no one except the four militiamen. The silence after the hate-filled screaming of the crowd earlier in the day should have been a signal but I was too tired and sore to realize anything other than that I was being taken to a prison camp.

But as I rounded a corner of the hut, I saw the reason for the silence and the absence of villagers.

WOMEN WITH CLUBS

Ahead of me, in the gathering darkness, I saw the path was lined four and five deep by some 250 men, women and children from nearby villages. In their hands they held clubs, bamboo spears, stones and chunks of dirt. As they spotted me, they began shouting and gesturing. They became more frenzied and agitated as I neared them. The absolute hatred in their eyes sent a chill through me.

Two small boys clutching bamboo spears darted from the edge of the group nearest me, lips set grimly and eyes glaring with hate. Jabbing and poking, they danced around me a moment. I felt sharp pains as the spears pierced my thighs and legs. I tried to draw away but my guards pushed me toward the crowd, the two boys scampering back as I was jostled forward.

With the guards pushing at me, I reached the beginning of the gauntlet line. The actions of the two boys had really fired up the others. Their chattering reached a high pitch and everyone was screaming and shouting at me, all the time raining blows with fists, clubs, and hoe handles, jabbing with spears and throwing rocks and clods of dirt. I could feel blood running from my nose and forehead. My lips were cut and swollen.

I periodically opened and shut my eyes, partly for protection and also in order to see whether I had neared the end of the line. But I was only about halfway through. I was getting dizzy and I stumbled a couple of times but I hadn't yet fallen.

Stay on your feet, I kept telling myself...Stay on your feet...You'll make it.

GRABBED MY HEAD

Then through half-closed eyes I saw a rather tall Vietnamese step out of the crowd directly in front of me. In his right hand he carried a hacksaw, somewhat rusted and bent out of shape. He reached forward and with his left hand grabbed the back of my head and forced me down in a bowed position. I felt something scraping with searing pain across my back and neck and as I struggled futilely in his grasp I twisted my head and saw his right arm pumping the saw across my back.

My God! I thought, instinctively tightening my neck muscles, he's trying to saw my head off. Later I was to learn he had, indeed, cut my back from left to right shoulder and across the neck in hacking swipes that scraped through the skin.

As I struggled to break away from him, the militiamen managed to combine their efforts and push him off me. But as he straightened he hit me in the mouth with his fist, knocking me backwards to the ground.

DRAGGED UPRIGHT

This seemed to excite the crowd all over again and they renewed their frenzy. Amid the repeated blows, I managed to struggle to my feet but as I stood up the tall Vietnamese kicked me in the chest, knocking me backwards again. Now the clubs, fists and spears were really working on me and, half conscious, I felt myself being dragged upright and pushed forward by the militia.

I really hurt now and for the first time I began to doubt that I would come out of this ordeal alive.

At that moment, the words to the song, "You'll Never Walk Alone," popped into my mind. I don't know why or how. It just happened. Thinking about it now, the only prior remembrance I have of that song is hearing a soloist sing it in a church but the words had stuck with me, and suddenly it was the only thing on my mind.

I shut out everything that was happening to me. I seemed to lose all fear and I know I walked a little straighter down that path lined with my tormentors. I didn't even feel the blows. Somehow, I had gotten an inner strength, physical and mental, to endure my ordeal without apprehension or fear. I remember thinking the worst these people could do was kill me.

FRENZIED CROWD

By this time my four guards and I had reached about the three-quarter mark of the gauntlet. Here the crowd, in another wave of renewed frenzy, began closing in on me and we were unable to proceed any further. Even the smallest of children were joining in the torment. I tried a bloody-lipped smile at one youngster of about five or six. His only reaction was to spit and slap at me. I was now totally encircled and felt death

"Aside from my physical condition, I felt I had survived the first real test of what I could take, mentally and physically. As it turned out, there were to be many such tests ahead for me..."

closing in on me. The militiamen pushed me to the ground where I sat hunched over as they tried to beat off the surging crowd. But it was futile. Seated there amid a tangle of bare legs churning the dirt, the blows and what I assumed to be accompanying curses, I mumbled a prayer.

At this point an old Vietnamese armed with a machine gun and dressed in some type of black, pajama-like uniform stepped toward us, gesturing at the crowd with the gun. He talked animatedly for a moment with the militiamen. I could see them nod agreement. Then the old man reached down, grabbed my tied arms and jerked me to my feet. With him and the militia forming a wedge, I was half dragged, half stumbled to the side of a building adjacent to the path. Here, as I leaned heavily against the wall, the old man and the militia ward off the villagers by clubbing at them with their weapons. In the approaching darkness, I could see several padlocked doors along the wall.

MILLING VILLAGERS

The man with the machine gun pulled some sort of tool from a pocket and snapped off one rusty lock. He whirled me around with one arm and shoved me inside the building with the other in one swift motion. As I sprawled forward to the ground, he stepped in behind me, closed the door and barred it. I could hear the villagers milling around outside. They were pounding on the doors and shouting. This went on for several minutes and then gradually the noise died down and it became very quiet.

I huddled on the floor in a corner of the building. Now I had some time to think. Aside from my physical condition, I felt I had survived the first real test of what I could take, mentally and physically.

As it turned out, there were to be many such tests ahead for me.

Looking back on that moment in the hut after stumbling through the gauntlet of villagers, I find it difficult to relate to all that had happened in my prior lifetime.

Certainly, in our Air Force survival training we had been prepared for any eventuality, including capture by the enemy. The stories told by Americans returning from Korean prisoner of war camps in another time and place were accepted as something that only happens to the "other guy."

Yet, it was happening to me, Lt. Col. Donald E. Odell (my friends call me Digger), born July 25, 1934, in Pontiac, Mich., and, prior to my assignment to Vietnam, a resident of Harrison Township, near Lake St. Clair where, as a boy, I went hunting and fishing with my grandfather.

HAPPY SUMMERS

I spent many a happy summer at my grandparents' home on Flats Island, across from Decker's Landing. In the fall, I returned to my classes at Whittier Elementary School in Pontiac. While in junior high school, I developed most every boy's keen interest in cars and engines. My late father, Carl Odell, had been an auto mechanic and he taught me a lot as we worked on the family car. I learned enough to get a part-time job in a Pontiac garage. While attending Pontiac High School, I began developing an interest in airplanes and on Sept. 6, 1952, at age 18, I enlisted in the Air Force.

I figured at the time that I'd get my military obligation behind me and then go on to college, never dreaming that fate had ordained for me a military career that would begin with basic training at Lackland Air Force Base in Texas and, on this afternoon in October of 1967, come close to ending with vicious finality on this dirt path in North Vietnam.

After basic training, I completed an electronics course and then was assigned as a radar technician on airborne fire control systems at Yuma, Ariz. It was here that I took my first ride in a jet plane.

THAT FIRST RIDE

The thrill of that ride as we skimmed over the desert and mountains has stayed with me and is relived each time I climb into a cockpit. I guess what I enjoyed most about that first flight, and all flights since then, is the feeling of absolute freedom...the close ties of man and machine that takes both of them into the limitless skies away from the bounds of the earth.

At the conclusion of that first flight, I knew I had to become a pilot.

Fortunately for me, my commander at Yuma was able to get me on a list for special college entrance examinations that would, if I passed, permit me to apply for aviation cadet training without the college requirement. I passed those exams with no trouble and I was assigned to Parks Air Force Base in Oakland, Calif., where I was to undergo three days of intensive cadet entrance examinations. I completed those at the top of the class of some 150 applicants. Because of a "dropout" vacancy, I was assigned to Aviation Cadet Class 55-S scheduled to begin training on April 24, 1954, back at Lackland Air Base.

I was on my way along the path that would take me eventually to combat missions over North Vietnam and 5½ years as a prisoner of war.

After a series of pre-flight and primary flight training assignments, I graduated top in my class and, on Aug. 1, 1955, received my pilot wings and commission as a second lieutenant in the U.S. Air Force.

FATE SMILED

At this point in my life, fate smiled on me again (perhaps to make up for the 5½ barren years to come). Home on 30-day leave, I met a pretty girl named Shirley Danielski who, after three years of long-distance courtship between home leaves, was to become my wife and mother of our four children.

In 1966, after various assignments to bases in the United States and Europe, I began a series of intensive training assignments gearing me for combat. I had been promoted to major in the meantime and in August of 1966, after bidding my family farewell on my final leave, I left to join the 34th Tactical Fighter Squadron based at Korat Air Base in Thailand.

It was from there that on Sept. 4, 1967...just 15 years from the day of my enlistment in 1952...I flew my first combat mission against military complexes in North Vietnam.

Little more than a month later, I was huddled in a corner of an old rice grainary building near a North Vietnamese village, awaiting transfer to a prison camp.

I, Lt. Col. Donald E. Odell, had become the "other guy."

(NEXT: Capture).

State revenue sharing will enrich local cities

Action in the house has quickened in the past week with the passage of a wide assortment of bills.

One of them was the state revenue-sharing bill. As passed by the house, the legislation would enrich the revenue-sharing formula for local units of government.

The measure increases the minimum amount of state-collected revenues that can be distributed to cities, townships and villages and provides that the payments are to be increased by $1 annually.

OTHER CHANGES made in the formula include, in the definition of overlapping taxes, those income taxes which might be levied by local school districts. The bill also revises the percentage of intangible taxes that go into the revenue-sharing fund. The income tax provision would cover the Detroit school district, which has been authorized by the legislature to levy an income tax if necessary.

What the overall bill does is increase the amount of state-collected and distributed tax monies that local governments will receive in the fiscal year starting July 1. The bill is now under consideration in the senate.

The house has passed and sent to the senate two bills to strengthen the rights of women. One of them would make it a misdemeanor to discriminate in the sale, leasing, renting or financing of property because of sex or marital status. This legislation was the result of complaints that women who are otherwise qualified and financially able have trouble in business transactions simply because they are women. There have also been objections that women have trouble getting credit because of their marital status.

The other proposal would strike from the employment security act a provision which makes pregnant women ineligible for unemployment benefits from the 10th week before their expected confinement until the sixth week after confinement.

BASICALLY, this means that a woman who is unable to work or not allowed to work during that period would find her income entirely cut off.

The constitutionality of this provision has in recent months been questioned by both Wayne County Circuit Court and the Michigan attorney general.

Of interest to campers would be action by the house and senate authorizing the department of natural resources to implement a campsite reservation system in Michigan next year.

Under the pilot program, the department will take applications for reservations at half of the 14,500 campsites in Michigan's 70 state parks.

THE DEPARTMENT has asked for $100,000 to launch the program. Department officials say they expect the money to be reimbursed through a special $2 reservation fee.

The fee would be added to the regular campsite charge ranging now from $1.50 to $3 a night. Campers will be able to apply in winter months for summer vacation campsites. Similar programs have worked well in other states, including California and Florida.

Approved by the house after it was defeated in its first attempt was a bill to require hunters to wear hunter orange for the 1974 season. The amount of orange material would be limited to 500 square yards. Other states requiring the easily-seen orange instead of traditional black and red outfits have witnessed significant decreases in hunting accidents. The bill is now in the senate.

Also approved and sent to the senate was a bill to permit any two members of a county board of commissioners to approve emergency expenditures of funds for the relief of honorably discharged military personnel or their dependents. This would make help available when needed, for distressed veterans and their families.

Rep. Owen questions university expansion

State Rep. Gary Owen (D-Ypsilanti) questioned the expansion of some state college and university programs in view of the costs as well as state needs in other fields in a recent speech before the Phi Delta Kappa fraternity of the University of Michigan.

Rep. Owen questioned "the expansion of teacher education programs at a time when the supply of teachers far exceeds the demands" and the need for a "Chinese masters program at Oakland University in Pontiac when there is one of the very best in the country at the University of Michigan."

"It is difficult to justify the Chinese masters program within a hundred miles of an existing program, especially in view of the limited resources available for higher education," Owen said.

The freshman legislator, a member of the House Appropriations Committee which determines and approves the appropriations for college and university programs, called for "institutions to enter into cooperative arrangements with other institutions."

"Institutions must establish needs and priorities," Owen stated. "In addition, more student contact is essential in determining those needs and priorities. A state research council should be established also, which would evaluate and coordinate research project priorities."

Owen said the four-year college and university budget currently being studied by the Senate totals $381,732,000, a boost in appropriations over last year's budget.

"In view of the fact that enrollment is leveling off, this is far too much," Owen declared. "We must put an end to duplication of programs and place our priorities where they belong."

Franchise hearing to be held

The City of Belleville has scheduled a public hearing for 8 p.m. July 2 on a proposed Detroit Edison Co. franchise in Belleville.

The hearing will be conducted in the city council chambers, 6 Main St.

City Attorney B. Ward Smith said the hearing is the first of three procedures in the granting of the franchise. The second is the adoption by the city council of an ordinance approving the franchise subject to voter approval and the third is a written acceptance from Detroit Edison, which is a formality, Smith said.

Home loans up for veterans

The number of G.I. home loans guaranteed by the Veterans Administration (VA) in the current fiscal year will likely register the heaviest volume of activity in 16 years, Donald E. Johnson, administrator of veterans affairs, has reported.

The VA Administrator noted that 303,000 loans with a face value of $7-billion were guaranteed in the first 10 months of this fiscal year, up four percent over the 291,500 loans approved in a comparable period of Fiscal Year 1972.

The total of 359,000 loans guaranteed in all of 1972, in turn, marked the most active year since 1957.

Veteran loans for mobile homes increased 40 per cent in the first 10 months of this fiscal year, jumping to 4,900 from 3,500 in a comparable period last year.

Johnson said the upward trend in VA loan volume began in 1971, and he attributed much of the gain to the general availability of mortgage money for home building and buying, and a law signed by the President on Oct. 23, 1970, which restored eligibility for loans to veterans of World War II and the Korean Conflict, eliminated the one-half per cent loan funding fee previously required of post-Korean veterans, and made other changes providing greater flexibility on the loan program.

Nearly 70 per cent of the VA home loans are now being made for veterans 35 years of age or less. The median age of veteran-borrowers is now 31.

Z-line aids yard

"Zero lot line" placement of homes on lots is gaining in popularity, because each house ends up with one large side-yard, better suited to outdoor living.

cases of phone trouble have been traced recently to air gun pellets found in telephone lines and cable.

"A single pellet from a gun can cut off scores of conversations — many of which could be emergency calls for police and fire, or from the sick and bedridden," said local Michigan Bell manager E. L. Greek.

"Cutting off calls in rural areas could be serious to the farmer who might have to make an emergency call to a veterinarian, or to the user of the gun himself who may need the phone to call for help in case of an accident," he said. "In addition to cutting off calls, those found shooting at phone lines can be held financially responsible for damage to the telephone company property," he added.

Her elbow-length illusion veil was held by a crescent cap of lace and she carried a teardrop bouquet of yellow roses and handsewn gladiolas tied with yellow streamers.

Maid of honor was Lou Ann Cousineau of Taylor who appeared in a yellow printed gown and matching soft-brimmed hat. Bridesmaids in mint green ensembles were Mary Bazylo of Allen Park; Mary Swartout of Taylor; and Jenny Steiner from St. Clair Shores.

Seven-year old Mary Kay Steiner, the flowergirl, donned a pale yellow frock in toe-touching length and carried a basket containing a mixture of tulips, roses, carnations, daisies, and baby's breath.

Recently wed McCoys honeymoon in Florida

St. Anthony's Catholic Church was the setting June 16 for the double ring ceremony which united Vicki Anguilm and James D. McCoy, both of Belleville, in holy matrimony.

The Rev. Raymond S. Skoney presided at the five o'clock nuptial rite before an altar appointed with two fan arrangements of white gladiolas and mums.

Mr. and Mrs. William P. Anguilm of 18100 Elwell Road, Belleville, and Mr. and Mrs. James R. McCoy of 88 Russell Court, Ypsilanti, are parents of the young couple.

ESCORTED to the sanctuary by her father, Vicki appeared in a contemporary bridal ensemble with an old-world look. The floor-length creation of silk organza was graced with bishop sleeves and a high, stand-up collar accented with daisy lace.

The daisy lace motif was used to band the bride's three-tiered silk illusion mantilla with daisies also comprising her crescent bouquet.

The trio of bridal attendants wore dacron organza gowns fashioned with pale pink bodices with bishop sleeves and confetti pink skirts decorated with pink roses.

The maid of honor, Chris Merkel of Belleville, was distinguished by her pale pink picture hat while the two bridesmaids, Faye Ivan of Belleville and Mrs. Jerry Scott, the bridegroom's sister from Ypsilanti, completed their ensembles with picture hats in hot pink. All three carried parasols filled with pink daisies.

JANET HOLLAND the bridegroom's niece, was dressed in a miniature version of the senior attendants' frocks for her role as flowergirl. Her hat was in soft pink and the basket she carried held pink and white daisies.

Mark Wilkinson of Belleville served as best man while David Salisbury and Bill Anguilm, the bride's brother, both of Belleville, ushered.

At the reception, which followed at the VFW Hall in Romulus, the 250 guests were greeted by the bride's mother who wore a sleeveless formal gown of turquoise polyester knit. The bridegroom's mother choose to wear a floor-length gown of blue and white chiffon. Both were honored with corsages of phalaenopsis orchids.

Before taking up residence at 8701-173 Belleville Road, Belleville, the newlyweds spent a week-long honeymoon in Florida.

Both graduates of Belleville

High School, the bride and groom are employed at the Hairpin Beauty Shop, Belleville, and General Motors at Willow Run, respectively.

The bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James R. McCoy, entertained at the rehearsal dinner which was held at Howard Johnson's Motor Lodge, Belleville.

Daughter's debut is a Father's Day gift

What nicer gift for a prospective father than to receive his "official title" right on Father's Day!

That's what happened June 17 to Bruce Dubruch of 50333 Willis Road, Belleville, when his wife delivered their first born, a daughter, at Oakwood Hospital, Dearborn.

The young lady, whose debut was so perfectly timed, weighed 6 lbs. - 8 oz. and was named Desirae.

Rings, vows exchanged in Lutheran ceremony

Elaine Linda Sell of Romulus and Thomas D. Lavander of Taylor were united in marriage May 19 at St. Paul's Lutheran Church in New Boston. Some 250 relatives and friends attended the five thirty double ring ceremony performed by Rev. Daniel Richert. For the occasion, the altar was adorned with two arrangements of gladiolas as well as tall candelabrum holding lighted tapers.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Sell of 36181 Pennsylvania Road, Romulus. The bridegroom, of 9935 Continental Circle, Taylor, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Lavander of 121 E. Madison, Lombard, Illinois.

Soloist at the wedding was Ruth Richert who sang "We've Only Just Begun" and "The Lord's Prayer."

FOR HER wedding, the bride chose a floor-length gown of nylon and Chantilly lace accented with pearls. The dress was fashioned with a rounded neckline, bishop sleeves and a high bodice above an A-line skirt. Chantilly lace also edged her chapel-length bridal veil.

Walking to the altar with her father, Elaine carried a cascade bouquet of pink and white roses mixed with baby's breath and wisteria.

MR. AND MRS. THOMAS D. LAVANDER

Mrs. Ann Staffeld of Romulus was her sister's matron of honor in a gown of light blue crepe over taffeta with dark blue satin and lace trim around the neckline and cuffs. Her headpiece was a dark blue satin bow with a short veil and her bouquet was comprised of pale blue carnations, corn flowers and baby's breath.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Jeanette Slack of Wheeling, Illinois, sister of the bridegroom; Cindy Sell of Romulus, sister of the bride; and Mrs. Betty Ann Baustert of Taylor. Their ensembles, identical to Mrs. Staffeld's were in apricot with orange trim; yellow with green; and lavender with purple, respectively.

TWO THREE-YEAR olds also were part of the bridal coterie: Janet Malvitz, the flowergirl, and James Staffeld, the ringbearer.

Janet donned a little pink frock trimmed in darker satin and carried a basket of carnations, corn flowers, and baby's breath. The pair are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Malvitz and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Staffeld.

Best man was Andrew Swartz of Ann Arbor. Groomsmen included Edwin Sell of Romulus, brother of the bride; Dale Slack of Wheeling, Illinois, a brother-in-law; Gregg Baustert of Taylor; and Byron Sell of Romulus, brother of the bride.

Mrs. Sell selected for the wedding a beige A-line knit formal gown while Mrs. Lavander donned a floor-length green and white checked knit dress. Both mothers were honored with orchid corsages.

Some 300 guests gathered at the Romulus Progressive Club Hall for the reception which followed. After a week-long honeymoon in Honolulu, the newlyweds took up residence in the bridegroom's apartment.

The new Mrs. Lavander, a 1969 graduate of Cleary College, is employed at Western Eaton Solvents and Chemicals in Romulus. Her husband holds a bachelor of engineering degree from Bradley University and is now with the Ford Motor Company in Dearborn.

EXECUTIVE BOARD — St. Anthony's Mothers Club held its last meeting of the current school year June 12 with installation of its 1973-74 officers highlighting the evening program. Presented with corsages coordinated to match the candles used in the ceremony, the new slate includes (from left) Mrs. Robert Gignac, secretary; Mrs. Keith Bowles, president; Mrs. Herman Hensley, vice-president; and Mrs. John Cymes, treasurer. Mrs. Sophie Zoller, who conducted the rite, also presented gifts to the outgoing officers Mrs. Clarence Collins, Mrs. George Villeneuve, Mrs. Clifford Hardy, and Mrs. Frank Rochowiak. A pot-luck supper preceded the program. The purpose of the Mothers Club is religious, intellectual and social; its aim being the furthering of school welfare, both parochially and catechetically.

If you plan a bit

Camping with kids can really be fun

Traveling and camping with small children can be fun. It often isn't because parents neglect the advance planning needed to make a trip run smoothly. From Michigan State University child development specialist Jeanne Brown come some suggestions for camping with kids.

Packing for the trip

One of the joys of camping, Mrs. Brown observes, is for a child to be able to get wet and dirty as often as possible - or so it seems to harried mothers. The wise mom packs plenty of old, durable clothes and shoes and doesn't get upset by a healthy layer of dirt. Jeans, T-shirts and sneakers are the unofficial uniform of camping kids. Warm outer clothing for chilly weather and bathing suits and rain gear for wet days are must-haves.

You don't have to take every bit of clothing the family owns, however, Mrs. Brown points out. You can almost always locate a laundromat to wash out a few things to get by on.

Disposable diapers are a blessing for the camping family that includes a member of the diaper set. Using disposables lightens Mother's work considerably and cuts down the gear that has to be hauled around.

Getting there

"How far is it now, Daddy?" "Aren't we there yet?" "I'm tired of sittin'." "Mommy, I gotta go bad!" Getting there isn't half the fun if you spend the whole trip trying to control a back seat full of bored, restless young children. It's not that they're trying to shave your patience thin, Mrs. Brown says. It's just that children are too lively to sit quietly looking out at the scenery for ours on end.

One solution to restlessness during long trips is to break the trip into several easy stages.

Whether you're embarking on a long or a short trip plan to stop once every hour or two so little ones can stretch their legs, Mrs. Brown suggests. A quick game of tag at a rest area can work off energies that would have surfaced later as fussing and fighting.

Stopping at children's museums, parks and playgrounds and other spots of interest to children contributes to the trip as a pleasurable experience in itself and helps parents and children arrive at their destination less worn out and battle weary.

Keeping the children entertained between stops in half the battle won, Mrs. Brown declares. Favorite toys and picture books and guessing games appeal to young children, while school-age children enjoy car games: identifying license plates or automobiles, playing 20 Questions, and so on.

"Don't overlook snacks as preventive medicine for crabbiness in adults as well as children," the specialist suggests. "Milk or juice in a Thermos, fresh fruit, raisins and other noncrumbly finger foods are ideal. Sweets should be avoided because, in combination with the motion of the car, they sometimes upset small tummies." Plan on snacking during rest stops.

A damp washcloth in a plastic bag or a package of premoistened towelettes are handy for cleaning up sticky fingers or minor spills.

If car sickness has been a problem in the past, your doctor can prescribe motion-sickness tablets. Make sure there is plenty of fresh air available, but take along a few paper bags, a small pail or a basin for emergencies.

At the camp

Once you reach camp there is seldom any problem keeping the children amused. The new surroundings offer dozens of interesting diversions, including new friends.

A few camp rules should be set up right away: stay within the confines of the campsite and out of other people's camps; never damage or destroy plants or other natural features; dispose of all litter and trash properly; stay away from snakes and other wild animals.

An exploration of the vicinity of the campsite by the whole family will help acquaint everyone with what the area has to offer and what precautions should be taken.

For those rainy days that every camping trip seems to have, a supply of books, games, puzzles and coloring materials can be a big help. "If you've done your homework on the area beforehand, you can use the rainy times to explore nearby museums, shops and historical sites and to take advantage of other indoor activities the area offers," Mrs. Brown suggests.

All rainy days don't have to spent indoors, of course. Children love to put on their swimming suits and play in a soft, warm rain. Use rain coats if weather is cool.

Sharpen shopping, cooking ability

If you're concerned about extending your beef dollar, one of the best ways to do it is by learning more about beef. Knowing your way around the meet counter is the key to buying beef on a budget. Knowledge of the wide variety of beef cuts available and the appropriate cooking methods for each is essential to any money-saving plan, according to Reba Staggs, National Live Stock & Meat Board.

Familiarity with a large number of cuts and how to cook them allows for flexibility in market shopping. Then when you recognize a good buy, a quick shift can be made in menu plans for a saving.

Preparation know-how makes for increased eating satisfaction and cuts waste that can accompany poor choice of cooking method, cooking at too high a temperature or overcooking. Roasting, broiling, pan-broiling, pan-frying, braising and cooking in liquid are all acceptable cooking methods for beef, but not all are good choices for every cut.

Tender Cuts Take Dry Heat

In general, tender cuts from the rib or loin sections are cooked by the dry heat methods. When low to moderate temperatures are used and overcooking is avoided, success is sure. The ease of these methods contributes to the popularity of rib roasts and sirloin steaks. However, since the loin and rib sections provide less than 28 percent of the beef cuts marketed, it should be no surprise that they do cost more.

The remaining 72 plus percent of the beef in the display case is less tender to varying degrees. These cuts also, however, can provide enticing entrees, and usually more economical ones. These sections provide the ground beef that is the backbone of many a budget meal.

Match Cut and Cooking Method

It is with the round, chuck, shank, brisket, short plate and flank that cooking know-how counts even more. Every one of the cuts from these less tender sections can be made tender and delicious when matched with the proper cooking method. This usually means braising or cooking in liquid. Some also can be satisfactorily roasted, broiled, pan-broiled or pan-fried under certain circumstances.

Roasts such as sirloin tip and rump, that are less tender than rib roasts, are at their best when roasted only to rare or medium and carved in thin slices.

Marinades can be used to help tenderize steaks such as round and blade for broiling. For example, a top round steak, cut 1 1/2 to 2 inches thick, provides a delicious meal when scored on both sides, marinated 6 hours or overnight, broiled to rare or medium and carved diagonally in thin slices.

When selecting blade steaks to broil, choose steaks cut only 1/2 to 3/4 inch thick and marinate before broiling. Marinades provide for interesting flavor variation as well as tenderizing.

Third son is born to Wadsworths

The birth of their third son, William Michael, is announced by Mr. and Mrs. William Wadsworth of 15447 Taft, Romulus. The new addition arrived June 4 at Annapolis Hospital, Wayne, and weighed in at 6 lbs. - 10 oz.

The baby's father is a patrolman with the Wayne County Sheriff's Department based at Detroit Metro Airport; his two big brothers are John, four and a half, and James, three and a half.

DAISIES, GLADS, baby's breath, and bachelor buttons made up the colorful centerpiece used by Mrs. Douglas Carlisle for her buffet luncheon last Saturday. Entertaining in honor of a close friend's daughter, Serena McCabe, she invited 16 ladies in for the one o'clock party.

Answering invitations to Mrs. Carlisle's Romulus home were members of a former bridge club; Mrs. Henry James, Mrs. Jerry Pruneau, Mrs. Carl Belmont, and Mrs. Don Grey, all from Wyandotte, and Mrs. Mark Higby of Southgate.

Still others who saw the bride-elect open gifts designated for her linen closets, were Mrs. Jeremy McCabe and Mrs. Francis Houck of Wyandotte, the honoree's mother and grandmother; as well as Mrs. James Brewer and Mrs. Horace Shively of Woodhaven; Mrs. Edwin McIntyre and Dearborn; and Mrs. Farley Henderson of Livonia. Try mushrooms for versatility

Mushrooms make delectable low calorie salads. They transform plain dishes into elegant entrees. For quick delicacies, try scrambled eggs and mushrooms, or chicken livers and onions sauteed in butter and simmered in a sherry-mushroom sauce. Serve french fried mushrooms as a snack or side dish. Add mushrooms to soups, sauces, and gravies. For a tasty, economical dish, try a mushroom-potato casserole or a combination of mushrooms and canned beans in tomato sauce.

MRS. NELSON L. HALL

Hall-Horne united at Baptist Church

Among this year's early June brides was Le Delhia Ann Horne, daughter of the James L. Hornes of 47231 Ayres, Belleville. She and Nelson Len Hall exchanged wedding bands and nuptial vows at Berean Baptist Church with the Rev. J. Franklin Miller presiding.

The bridegroom, whose apartment at 2789 Golfside, Ypsilanti, is now home for the newlyweds, is the son of the Lee Roy Halls of Paducah, Kentucky.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gownned in poly-organza Chantilly lace designed with a Sabrina neckline, bouffant lantern sleeves and a full skirt terminating in a cathedral train.

Her nylon tulle veil was banded with Chantilly lace and was caught to a crown of rose-appliqued lace studded with seed pearls. A bouquet of white roses centered with an orchid-tipped corsage completed her ensemble.

AS HER SISTER'S honor attendant, Tammy Horne wore a gown of orchid polyester gown to which she pinned her corsage of yellow roses.

The reception was held at 8975 Textile Road, Ypsilanti, after which the young couple departed for a short honeymoon in Canada.

The new Mrs. Hall graduated from Belleville High School in 1971 and is employed as a secretary at Eastern Michigan University. Her husband was graduated in 1964 from Lone Oak High School in Paducah, Kentucky, attended Murry State University at Moorehead, Kentucky, and is now employed at the U.S. Post Office Ypsilanti.

The reassuring words "The Lord is my shepherd, I shall not want: He makes me lie down in green pastures" seem to be too often ignored. Too often forgotten in the chase of imagined rainbows. July 4 holiday expected to be very dangerous

This year's midweek Fourth of July holiday could well be the most dangerous of any in recent history with an estimated 3.2 million motorists expected to drive 282.5 million miles over the 30-hour period, according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

"Despite the shortness of this holiday, a combination of many motorists driving near home and others rushing to resort spots could cause traffic fatalities to soar this July Fourth," said Fred Rehn, Auto Club general manager.

should be due to work fatigue and eagerness to reach their destination."

Rehn pointed out that this dangerous after-work rush situation is considered by Auto Club as a main reason why last year, when July Fourth fell on a Tuesday, highway deaths reached a record 47 during the 102-hour holiday period.

This year's July Fourth holiday officially begins at 6 p.m. Tuesday, July 3, and ends midnight Wednesday, July 4. Extremely heavy traffic volumes are not expected, as usual, over this holiday due to its short duration. Peak travel times will probably be in the morning and from late afternoon to early evening on Wednesday.

"Since many persons will probably be taking extra time off from work either before or after the Fourth, we do expect higher than normal traffic volumes over a 10-day period from Friday, June 29, to Sunday, July 8," Rehn said.

HE EMPHASIZED that fears of possible gas shortages should not deter any motorist from traveling during the July Fourth holiday.

"While there are several service stations that are reducing their opening hours or limiting purchases to conserve fuel supplies, we are not aware of any motorist being stranded as result of not finding gas," Rehn said.

Rehn added that false alarm over gas shortages has been cited as a main cause behind an estimated 10 percent drop in tourism in the Upper Peninsula, as well as a five percent decrease in Mackinac Bridge crossings during the first two weeks in June.

"This is an unfortunate situation," he noted, "because of all the sections of the state, the Upper Peninsula is probably in the best shape fuel-wise. Many U.P. stations are operating with an excess of gasoline due to this summer's decline in tourism."

Rehn said motorists could minimize any inconveniences in finding gas this July Fourth by taking these two precautions: stop for gas when fuel tanks are half empty, and fill tanks during daylight hours to avoid searching for an open station at night.

IN TERMS of highway 'Outreach' program stepped up

VA has stepped up its "outreach" program of informing Vietnam era veterans and servicemen, including returned prisoners of war who are leaving the military, of the availability of government benefits.

Outreach efforts begin while servicemen are on active duty and continue after discharge. GI Bill details have been provided to two million servicemen in Vietnam; 250,000 have been counseled in military hospitals, and three million at separation points.

Four million letters have been mailed to veterans and millions of telephone calls have been made. One and a half-million interviews have been conducted with veterans at the VA's 72 Veterans Assistance Centers around the country.

'Two out of every three fatal accidents over the last five years have occurred within 25 miles of the victims' homes.'

safety, Auto Club notes that these four factors could help reduce traffic deaths over the 30-hour July Fourth holiday:

1. An estimated 15 to 20 percent more State Police officers will be on duty than on a normal Tuesday and Wednesday. Police will concentrate on patrolling high-accident areas and easing traffic tie-ups.
2. Auto Club's "Bring 'Em

Back Alive!" Holiday News Service will broadcast highway information hourly from 3 p.m. Tuesday to 11 p.m. Wednesday to more than 130 Michigan radio and television stations. Reports will include traffic conditions, congested areas to avoid, available motel and camping space, the gasoline supply situation and safety tips to keep drivers alert.

3. Motorists are urged to concentrate on safe driving, especially by wearing their safety belts at all times and by avoiding alcohol. By taking these two latter precautions, highway travelers could help cut fatal accidents by more than 50 percent, Auto Club estimates.

4. REACT and other civic groups will be providing free coffee and safety information for holiday travelers at seven freeway rest areas. The locations are:

—Eastbound I-94, south of Battle Creek, near Helmer Road, from 6 p.m. to 6 a.m.

July 3-4 and from 6 p.m. to 6 a.m. July 4-5.

—Eastbound I-94, west of Jackson near the Deering exit, from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. July 4.

—I-94 in Port Huron, Water Street exit, all day July 4.

—Northbound US-131, south of Kalamazoo near Portage, from 7 a.m. to 10 p.m. on June 30 and July 1 and 4.

all day July 3-4.

—Westbound I-96, southeast of Lansing near Okemos exit, from 4 p.m. to 3 a.m. June 29 and from noon to midnight July 3-4.

AS OVER the Memorial Day weekend, the state's worst traffic trouble spot this July Fourth will probably be on I-75 around Flint due to a 21-mile-long road-widening project between the I-75-U.S. - 23 merging point and Birch Run. While work in that area is suspended on weekends and will be stopped from 2 p.m., Tuesday, July 3, to Thursday morning, July 5, traffic at peak travel times is expected to slow down considerably around Flint because of the close proximity of construction equipment and ditches.

Shippers using the Zilwaukee Bridge, which carries I-75 over the Saginaw River near Saginaw, have agreed to curtail bridge use during peak travel times from Friday, June 29, to Sunday, July 8. Bridge openings will be eliminated on July 3 from 4 p.m. to 9 p.m. and from 3 p.m. to 10 p.m. on July 4.

As usual, the State Highway Department has ordered all road construction stopped throughout the state from 5 p.m. Tuesday, July 3, to Thursday morning, July 5.

"The first danger - near-home driving - is confirmed by State Police statistics which show that roughly two out of every three fatal accidents over the last five years have occurred within 25 miles of the victims' homes," Rehn said.

HE NOTED that with the average motorist expected to drive only about 90 miles during the July Fourth holiday, a potentially lethal situation could develop since many drivers tend to be more relaxed and less conscious of traffic safety when traveling in familiar surroundings.

"Secondly, we anticipate many motorists taking their families to a resort or camping area the weekend before the Fourth and then returning to work that Monday and Tuesday," Rehn explained.

"Tuesday night they will set out to rejoin their families for the Fourth, and possibly they will be less alert than they

BEFORE AND AFTER — After 50 years, this stolid seaside home (left) was showing its age. It lacked modern convenience and needed freshening up. Some exterior redesign, sunny new decor and use of low-maintenance Andersen Perma-Shield windows and gliding doors lightened and brightened the refurbished home (right).

'Fitting out' refreshes sturdy seaside cottage

Sometimes an old seaside home — like a hearty, but weatherworn boat — needs only a "fitting out" to make it shipshape.

Many waterfront dwellings, in fact, boast venerable virtues. They're sturdy, spacious, and have a sort of unpretentious charm.

Remodelers of such homes should chart a careful course, so as not to lose the best of the old when adding new comforts and convenience.

ONE EXAMPLE of successful remodeling is a home on New Jersey's north shore.

It has an excellent location on Barnegat Bay, 11 rooms, a large sun porch, and second-floor balconies front and rear.

But, after half a century, the house has lost much of its vigor and visual appeal.

Owner Robert E. Lang felt it also lacked graciousness, warmth, and facilities for entertainment. He and architect Raymond P. Dinklage decided on extensive modernization within the nostalgic framework of a "cottage at the shore."

Updating required some interior and exterior redesign. Dramatic changes were made with new windows and gliding patio doors.

FOR EXAMPLE, old windows and doors leading to the rear balcony were narrow and heavily-framed. Replacing them with modern gliding glass patio doors immediately sunlit the rooms, gave them wide views of the bay, and made the balcony more accessible.

Andersen Perma-Shield patio doors were chosen for their low-maintenance and insulating qualities. The doors' vinyl-clad wood frames and panels won't need painting, and will not rust or corrode even in the area's abrasive salt air and seasonal weather extremes. Insulating safety glass assures year-round comfort.

Similar magic was wrought on the sun porch. Nondescript jalousies were replaced with Andersen Perma-Shield casement windows, whose tall slim lines bestow an air of classic elegance. The three newlywindowed walls flood the porch with sunshine, open easily to admit tangy breezes, and frame a spectacular seascape. The room's refreshing outdoor feeling was extended by adding-on a spacious sheltered deck.

IN ANOTHER major change, a small kitchen and pantry were merged into one large cooking — cleaning center with streamlined appliances and lots of storage. An adjoining utility area became a breakfast room featuring a new vinyl-clad, traditionally-styled angle bay window.

The window is uniquely "curtained" from the street by greenery that fills the interior sill and hangs from ceiling baskets.

An airy sense of summer abounds in the house. Inside, warm yellows, oranges and browns are balanced by cool greens and white. At the entrance, a dark, ungainly porch was enclosed and a handsome, white double-doorway added.

New siding perks up the exterior. Crisp canvas awnings provide an appropriate nautical touch.

REMODELED PORCH — Tangy breezes, plentiful sunlight and refreshing views make this remodeled porch the highlight of a handsome bayside home. Glass "walls" were created with casement windows which won't need painting and have double-pane insulating glass for comfort and convenience.

Beekeepers may file claim for losses due to pesticides

In recent years the increasing use of pesticides has created a hazardous environment for honeybee population.

The honeybee is vitally important to both the Michigan and the entire U.S. economy since it is the major pollinator of legume seeds, fruit and vegetable crops. Quoting Dr. E.C. Martin of the Department of Entomology at Michigan State University, use of honeybees to pollinate blueberries, fruit and alfalfa has created tremendous increases in yields.

Honeybees provide about 85 per cent of the insect pollination of various crops worth approximately four billion dollars, a sizeable part of the agricultural economy. In addition, the honey crop itself for 1972 was valued at $67,221,000 nationally.

Under the 1970 Agricultural Act, an indemnity payment program was authorized for losses of bees due to approved pesticides. Wittenbach stated that the indemnity payment program under current legislation is authorized through Dec. 31. The present Congress may include it in the farm program bill under consideration.

To be eligible for payments, beekeepers must file with their local County ASC Committee a report listing the number of colonies located at each apiary. When colonies are moved to different locations, such changes in position must be reported to the county office.

When losses occur due to pesticides, a beekeeper must report the loss promptly to the local county office. Immediately upon notice, arrangements will be made for an inspection by a representative of the County ASC Committee to determine the extent of damage.

It is the responsibility of the beekeeper to furnish proof that the cause of damage was due to pesticide approved by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Proof may be furnished in the form of chemical tests or statements from persons such as pesticide applicators, farmers, or others who have firsthand knowledge of the type, date and the place the pesticide was applied.

CARROLL RIGNER'S HOROSCOPE
Tomorrow's Forecast from the Carroll Rignier Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Today's eclipse of the sun suggests it is advisable for you not to become depressed. Keep yourself under perfect control and avoid the temptation to undermine the good intentions of others. Try not to hurt the feelings of others.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) More courtesy at home can work wonders now. You need more backing but won't get it until tomorrow, so be patient. Make sure you attend to routine duties at home. Avoid arguments.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Particular care is necessary in motion today. Hold your tongue and don't alienate an associate who has personal troubles. Reading can be most enlightening for obtaining data you need.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Don't take any risks because you think you don't have enough for your needs. Work a little harder and all is fine. If you consult with a financial adviser, you can begin new project.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Friends could be annoying now, but it is only because they are in trouble of some kind. Take steps to improve your appearance. Make an excellent impression at social tonight.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Don't give way to negative thoughts and influences and you will come out all right today. Smile as you quietly attend to your duties. Avoid a troublesome situation later in the day.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Others are busy and cannot go along with you to places of amusement, so carry through by yourself. Since "I Serve" is your motto, do just that and derive fine benefits therefrom.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Try not to take any chances where your credit is concerned or you could regret it later on. Forget civic work for the time being. It could lead to trouble. Keep busy at routine duties.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You want to get into a new venture but this requires more study before it can work out successfully. A letter may bother you, but don't be so disturbed. Do a favor for one in trouble.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Your intuition is not working accurately now so do not follow it. Use only your very best judgment. Mate could be acting strangely now, but don't let this upset you. Be calm.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) If a friend has been negligent it could be that there have been difficult conditions at home to contend with. Study the situation carefully and show understanding. Be logical.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Although you are in no mood to work, a change of attitude can see you accomplishing a good deal. Plan your time and activities well and all goes smoothly. Be more optimistic.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Not a good day for recreation you want since there are more important matters to attend to first. Being cheerful with those who are in trouble helps them. Take it easy tonight.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those young people who will want to engage in any argument. This could easily lead to trouble if not taught to handle own affairs well and not to interfere in the business of others. Direct the education along artistic lines or whatever requires precision. Save now for a college education.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Area students participate in Boy's State program

Three students from Belleville High School attended Wolverine Boys' State at Michigan State University in East Lansing from June 13 through June 20.

This educational activity is directed to governmental processes, procedures and operations sponsored by the American Legion.

Boys' State President Clarence Carlson, Legionnaire, announced that all three young men from Belleville were honored by elections to offices. The two party system provided about 900 boys to take part in electioneering, campaigning, participating in convention floor activities, parading and advertising. The elections were held and conducted by boys of Boys' State.

Mark Von Destinon, 4451 Lake Crest Dr., Belleville, was elected to Boys' State Senate for the Federalists Party. Senator Von Destinon was then elected to the post of Senate Minority Whip by his fellow Senators. The Boys' State Senate took over the Senate floor of the State Capitol Building on Monday to hold their first official session.

Van Buren establishes new ed program

The creation of a "learning center" for exceptional children with learning disabilities has unanimously been approved by the Van Buren Board of Education.

The school board acted on a request and recommendation made by Mrs. Ruth Hayes, school district psychologist. The learning center, as a pilot program, will be located at West Willow Elementary School.

The center links with the school system's special education program and will be staffed by two certified special education teachers.

The program will use special materials and methods for specific problems and will assist children with learning disabilities, emotional problems, cultural and educational deprivations, and educable retarded children close enough to the normal range of intelligence require a more expanded and flexible program.

The students at the center will each spend the necessary time required of them there, and the remainder of their school day in regular classroom.

Camp project is a success

Van Buren Township's Recreation Department's initial summer camp turned out to be a "very successful" pilot project, William A. Loyd, department director, said Monday.

The township's three-day summer camp attracted 46 participants, boys and girls between the ages of 10 and 12.

The three nights and two full action-packed days including swimming, boating, hiking, nature lore, arts & crafts, fishing, campfires and singing. There also was archery and riflery.

The summer camping activities were held at Camp DeSales, a 240-acre, rustic site with a half-mile fronting on the shore of Vineyard Lake. This camp is located one mile north of the intersection of Michigan State Route 50 and U.S. 12 near Brooklyn, Mich.

The camp staff consisted of a staff of volunteers made up primarily of teachers from the Van Buren Public Schools.

TREE FROM RECYCLABLES — The Ecology Unit of the Romulus Junior High School purchased this Mountain Ash from Fisher Nursery in Romulus with the proceeds from the sale of newspapers collected by the students for a recycling campaign. The tree will be planted in front of the junior high. Holding the tree is Donna Williams, science teacher and unit coordinator and principal Stuart Hobbs. — Romulus Roman photo.

Federal revenue funds received in county

Wayne County received an estimated $6,682,767 in federal revenue sharing funds for the first half of 1973.

The receipt of these funds did not make it possible to reduce taxes or to initiate new programs since inflationary cost increases in existing service programs necessitate the allocation of those funds to maintain the present level of services, according to the Wayne County Board of Commissioners.

The bulk of the federal money — $4,542,767 — was allocated to social services for the aged and poor.

In addition, $1,040,000 went to public safety and law enforcement programs, $1-million to health programs and $100,000 to environmental protection.

WORKSHOP PARTICIPANTS — Mrs. Allen Bodenmiller and Mrs. Ruth Knysz Belleville area parents, participated in a recent two-day workshop held at the administration offices of the Van Buren School District. The workshop supervised by members of a special committee appointed to study proposals and responsibilities for a new student problem counselor for the school district.

Van Buren board adds special counselor post

The job description and responsibilities of a proposed student program counselor to be hired by the Van Buren Board of Education were presented and approved by the school board at a special session Monday night.

The recommendations submitted to the school board involved helping students solve problems such as drug abuse, unwanted pregnancies and other difficult situations which face young people in the world today.

These recommendations, plus other proposals for helping students solve their problems, were discussed at a two-day workshop of the committee held June 14 and 15 at the school district's administration building.

RAYMOND KOHR, curriculum and personnel director for Van Buren Public Schools, said the workshop was called to formulate the proposals for presentation to the board.

The new student problem counselor will meet the need for individual and group counseling, he explained, as present counselors do not have the time to spend in this area.

The workshop was attended by parents, staff members, students, administrators, a school board member and two resource people.

The parents attending were Mrs. Ruth Knysz, Mrs. Madeline Blebins, Mrs. Madelyn Mason and Mrs. Allen Bodenmiller.

STAFF MEMBERS were Ed Steinman, director of guidance for the school district; Mary Claire Ellward, high school counselor; Ms. Marjorie Lingerfelter and Mrs. Eva Lukher, school nurses; Ms. Fokie Butler, Ms. Anne Patton, and Mrs. Nancy Moses, high school teachers.

Ms. Kathy Szabo and Tom Kuhr were the high school students in attendance.

The administrators at the workshop were School Supt. Dale Kaulitz; Raymond Kohr, director of personnel; John F. Ford, Belleville High School principal; James Copias, assistant principal at Belleville High School; and James Richendollar, principal of North Junior High School, Belleville.

Elwood Bos, recently elected to another term on the board of education, also attended the workshop.

Mark Army, assistant director of project TRIAD (project for Genesee, Shiawassee and Lapeer Counties), and Kenneth Kaminsky of Wayne County's Intermediate School District project DARTE (Drug Abuse Reduction Through Education), were the resource people at the workshop.

Area woman leaves job

Mrs. Jan Wyman, 11800 Sunset Lane, Belleville, has terminated her employment with the Van Buren Township.

Mrs. Wyman began her employment with the township's treasurer's office in February as a clerk.

She accepted employment with an understanding with Township Treasurer Ralph Hedman that she would terminate her employment upon the completion of the school year so that she might be able to attend to her children's needs.

In leaving her job, Mrs. Wyman said: "I would like to add it was my immense pleasure to have had the opportunity to serve the people of Van Buren Township."

State grid playoffs in 1974

By TOM MOORADIAN

For years high school football coaches in the state have moaned because there was no realistic way to determine a state champ.

Many states, as Indiana and Ohio, do have a formula they use to determine state high school football championships. Michigan, it appears, will soon join their ranks.

Earlier this month the representative council of the Michigan High School Athletic Association had its annual spring meeting in Charlevoix and one of the items acted upon by this august group was to determine a means of staging football playoffs.

"Some said it was impossible to stage state baseball tournaments," commented Allen W. Bush, director of the MHSAA, a body that governs the fate of athletics in the state. "But, in its third year the baseball championships have proven a tremendous success."

"We have established a committee to study the feasibility of football playoffs and it will report to the schools before a vote of schools is completed," Bush said. "We think the time is ripe for such playoffs."

Though the plans are in their embryonic stage, there is optimism that preps may be playing for state titles as soon as 1974.

Coaches in this area, in the past, have applauded such plans.

In fact, one of the systems I have personally favored for statewide tournaments was to let the league champs of each conference throughout the state represent the league in such a playoff. The conference championships would have greater meaning.

THE REPRESENTATIVE council also adopted several note-worthy recommendations of the Junior High School Committee, including "increased events for swimming and track and removed the five-day limitation between scheduled meets."

And, seventh and eighth graders will be allowed 12 basketball games which includes each game played in an approved tournament.

The transfer rule restrictions were lifted for seventh and eighth graders, giving them immediate eligibility if their family should move from one school district to another.

FOR BASKETBALL fans, take note: The MHSAA will make more tickets available for competing schools during state tournament time, and the sale of school courtesy tickets for the basketball tournament is eliminated.

That probably will mean I won't be able to get my courtesy tickets from coach Bill Hawley at Wayne Memorial.

WITH THE increase of hockey teams in the state and the sports popularity ever-increasing, the MHSAA also will study the feasibility of conducting a state hockey tournament.

And, one more note: Students will be limited to participating in only one sport season when that sport, leading to a state championship, is sponsored twice during the year. For example, a student may swim in either the fall or the winter season, but not both.

What brought up this column? Would you believe a letter from coach Robert Draheim, the learned grid scholar-coach from Garden City West High School?

Draheim dropped his 1973 football schedule in the mail and I couldn't help but think, folks football is just around the corner.

Belleville softball league race close

Only one game separates the top three teams in the Belleville Softball League after last week's action.

Blue Boar Inn (10-1) remains on top after two victories over Belleville Moose, 10-2 and 6-4. PLAV stayed close at 10-2 by accepting a forfeit win over Ypsilanti State Police and a 12-2 decision over Belleville Mobile Homes.

Belleville Teachers, in third place with a 9-2 record, also won twice. They edged first-place Blue Boar Inn, 7-6, in eight innings, and whipped Auto Air Cargo, 15-2.

In other games, Belleville Jaycees beat Mobile Homes, 12-2, and State Police, 8-7. Belleville Moose upended Auto Air Cargo, 5-3.

Athletic Conference, while Taylor in the Great Lakes 8. LOBKOVICH helped Coach Mike Hairabedian's Spartans emerge as the Tri-River Conference co-champs, sharing the title with Dearborn Heights Crestwood. Dave was named to the all-conference and All-Area teams for the past two years. He was one of the seven scholar-athletes on the team. "Dave is a gentleman on and off the court," said Hairabedian, and he always gives 100 percent, a mark of a true athlete. He beat guys in the league that people said were undefeatable.

DIBIASI is a versatile athlete who also excels in swimming, a sport he earned all-league recognition in. He finished the year with a perfect 15-0 dual meet record and captained the Spartans the last two years. He was the team's MVP.

A scholar with a 3.7 average, Dave is a member of the National Honor Society. "If Lobkovich's forte was his steadiness as a player - a ball never got past him, then DiBiasi's asset was that he came through for us in the clutch," said Hairabedian.

ABBOTT has lettered three years as a member of Wayne Memorial's tennis team and this year he teamed with a close friend, Leitch, to go undefeated in the Mid-Wayne Conference and 11-2 over-all on the season.

Both Abbott and Leitch are seniors. "It's very difficult to explain why Dave and I had the season that we did," commented Abbott, "but I think it's because we're the best of friends and as such we tend to think in about the same way."

"That obviously helped our tennis game," he pointed out.

IGOU, who teamed with Thomas to form one of the most productive No. 1 doubles team in the history of Churchill, also rounded out his third varsity season with Coach Walt Yauch's team.

"Jay was one of the leaders on this year's squad," said Yauch, "you could count on him, and Thomas, all the time. They were the two that wanted to win the most. In fact these two boys went the first seven meets without even giving up a set."

Igou and Thomas finished their prep careers with a 10-2 won-lost record, also the best mark ever posted by a Churchill doubles' team.

Thomas, who is 6-foot-7, is an all A student. He will be attending the University of Michigan in the fall while Jay has decided to go to Western Michigan University, his coach's alma mater.

RUARK, who recently turned 17, has been a member of Coach Don Aldrich's team for the past two years, lettering both years.

As the No. 1 singles player Don climaxed his junior year with a 11-6 record. He split even (5-5) in the Northwest Suburban Conference.

He won his first two rounds of regional competition at Ypsilanti before losing to top-seeded Pete Osler.

Also a scholar-athlete who finished with a 3.6 average (out of a possible 4.0), Ruark should be one of the top title contenders in the league and regional when the season rolls around next year.

BRANT is only a sophomore and the 16-year-old Dearborn Heights Robichaud netter has been competing on the varsity level for two years. He picked up 11 victories and lost six matches and, after reaching the regional quarterfinals, was erased by top-seeded Cranbrook's Craig Casper who went on to win the state championship.

ANN ARBOR — Neil Spitalny fired a 296 to qualify for the NCAA golf championships schedule June 18-23 at Oklahoma State.

WALT YAUCH

It has taken Walt Yauch three years to build Livonia Churchill into a tennis power.

The 41-year-old industrial arts teacher started the tennis program at the Livonia high school and has managed to coach a team that finished with a 10-2 over-all record this year after finishing 5-9 in 1972.

"I feel that experience and desire to win was the difference," said Yauch.

FOR HIS success, The Daily Eagle and Associated Newspapers' honor Yauch as Coach of the Year.

A graduate of St. Joe's High, Yauch earned his bachelor of arts in education at Western Michigan University where he also was awarded letters in football and tennis.

He came to Livonia Churchill as a coach-teacher when the school doors opened four years ago.

Married to Betty, the Yauchs have three boys - Greg, 17, Steve 14, and Tim 8.

Greg is on Farmington High's tennis team, a team that won the Inter-Lakes Conference title.

"We zipped them when we played them," quipped Walt, "shows how strong our league was."

CHURCHILL set a couple of records en route to its second place finish in the Western Six Conference. The Chargers missed winning the championship when they dropped their final two games of the season, both by 4-3 scores, to Waterford Mott and Farmington Harrison.

The Chargers didn't give up a point in their first seven matches and went nine matches before sustaining a loss. The winning streak is a school record.

"We're going to be hard-pressed to duplicate that record next year," says Yauch, "we're losing six of our top 10 players. But I feel we will remain competitive."

Translated into layman's language, fans, it means watch out for the Chargers next year.

Bob's unbeaten

Bob's Produce of Southgate won its sixth straight New Boston Pee Wee League game Saturday, downing Raker's Acres, 11-3. David Gloak provided the needed Produce offensive punch with a homer and a double, and Sam Farrugia tripled and doubled.

Elected

The late Lyman Frimodig, all-time Michigan State athletic great and long-time Spartan athletic official, has been elected to membership in the Michigan Upper Peninsula Sports Hall of Fame.

Ypsilanti regatta lures top hydroplane drivers

One of the finest inboard hydroplane fields ever assembled is expected to be assembled for the 1973 "Regatta Ypsilanti" which will be staged Saturday and Sunday on Ford Lake.

The "Regatta Ypsilanti" started in 1966 with a one-day Inboard Regatta on a lake that few people thought worthy of any recreational value.

Ford Lake was undeveloped, unused and considered a shallow mud flat. As was proven, the deep water, lack of current and wind protection provided the best Inboard racing course in the Middle West.

Other outboard, drag Boat, and Sailing Clubs have since concurred with the JC's optimism on the value of Ford Lake for spectator water events.

The "Regatta Ypsilanti" continued every year, growing in size to a point where the Ypsi J.C.'s bid against Miami and Los Angeles to host the 1970 National Championships.

THE NATIONALS were a three-day event with National NBC TV live coverage and participation in one form or another by most of Ypsilanti area people.

With water conditions at their finest and a field of 250 Inboards from 47 States participating, the accidents were many and serious.

BIGGER AND BETTER — The Regatta Ypsilanti, sponsored by the Ypsi Jaycees, has grown from a local event to one covered by national television. And this year's class, Prize money by JC's, STP Corporation, US Steel, Champion and Auto Lite national titles and a fast field left Ypsilanti with seven in the hospital and one fatality.

Will anyone forget the battle between Salt Walther in staged on Ford Lake, has lured a record field of inboard hydroplanes, like the one above, to compete for the title.

again next weekend.

The heats will start at noon with the small 850 C.C. Inboards up to the Ski Racing Runabouts and 7 Liters. Each of eight classes will run two heats of a 1 2-3 mile course. Each heat will consist of three laps.

Chuck Earl, George Mitchell and Dick Hoffman each picked up a pair of hits for Press Repair. Bob Zygai was the winning hurler while Bob Hamel suffered the loss.

The race in League "B" remained deadlocked as the co-leaders had no problems in posting a pair of wins each. Pete Molnar hurled a no-hitter against hapless National Car Rental as Morgan pounded out 16 hits for a 17 to 0 win. Molnar and Randy Luczak collected three hits each and Wilson Boone and Luczak cracked homers.

Walter's Bar forced Morgan to go the full seven innings Thursday but the result was the same as they fell to Morgan's 20 hit assault 13 to 4.

Greg Brothers, Wilson Boone, Pete Molnar and Ross Holm all gathered 3 hits in the game. Ross Holm held Walter's to eight hits to register the win while Rich Marshall absorbed the loss.

Polka Dot Party Store shut out Romulus City Drugs 12 to 0 Tuesday as Chuck Hazen scattered five hits to pick up the shutout. Dave Rakotz had three hits in as many appearances and Leon James, Bob Brothers, Gene Petrie and Bill Worden added a pair each to Polka Dots 14 hit total.

Hazen worked on the mound again Thursday and allowed 14 hits and picked up his fifth win of the year to bring his record to 5 and 1. Polka Dot supported Hazen with 16 runs on 20 hits to gain a 16 to 5 verdict. Don Skiff, Jack Slater and Bob Brothers all had 3 hits, Leon James belted a homer and had four RBI's, Slater also picked up 4 RBI's.

CARPENTRY BY Woodcraft moved into a tie for third place by posting a 13 to 6 win over Baum's Funeral Home. Penza West clouted a two run round tripper for Woodcraft. Winning pitcher Norm McLenon held Baum's to seven hits, five of them coming in the third when Baum's scored five times. Ivan Kinshella was rocked for 17 hits and took the loss.

Ken Laskaska started his first game of the season and allowed seven runs on nine hits as Romulus Hardware coasted to a 17 to 7 win over Baum's Funeral Home. Bob Rithaler, Roy Szyndlar and Ken Laskaska all collected three hits in the match. Roy Szyndlar belted the games only homer.

Bob Sagins pitched Romulus City Drugs to a 6 to 2 win over Landing Strip Lounge. Mark McNett smacked a solo homer for the druggist.

Kid Power takes over softball lead

The battle for the top in the Romulus Women's Softball League last Saturday left only one team unblemished — Kid Power.

The squad trimmed zKel-Joys, 19-16, to gain sole possession of first place in the circuit with a 3-0 record. Kel-Joys are now tied for second with two other teams at 2-1 marks.

Vicki Gray (five hits), and Von Casey and Tareia Gray (four each) paced Kid Power. Vet Casey and Althea Butler singled three times. Vicki Gary also stroked a three-run homer.

THREE KEL-JOYS players — Cindy Nixon, Sandra Selle and Jan Madaski — had perfect 4-for-4 days.

Romulus City Diamonds clutches a share of second place by virtue of a 11-6 win over the Ms. Fits. Five Diamonds had at least two hits.

The City Hall Gals comprised the third team locked into second. They dunked Odd Squad, 11-6, behind the four-hit batting of Diane Summerfield. Four others had three hits, and Angie Hicks belted a home run. Bertha Sterling went 4-for-4 for Odd Squad.

The Seekers whipped the Roadrunners, 13-8, as Val Newcomb had four hits to lead the 22-hit team attack.

Terry - 'man of action!'

By MITCH KEHETIAN
Editor

Terry L. Wood is a "young man of action" who adheres to a credo that any man who can conceive an idea...can achieve that idea, "if he pursues and truly believes in his God-given capabilities."

Terry, 26, a onetime disc jockey with Inkster Radio Station WCHB, has entered a new field, and, with a few breaks along the way - he'll make it in the mainstream of the business world.

JAMES BOND IS BACK -- Roger Moore, as James Bond, is flanked by Gloria Hendry (left) and his co-star, Jane Seymour, in the latest Bond adventure, "Live and Let Die," which opens today at an area theatre.

—For your— Entertainment

The Jaycee from Romulus is president of Wood Tele-Radio Productions, a firm which has already completed a pilot film for a black variety show.

TERRY CALLS his "idea" show "It's Hip," and expresses confidence the pilot show will make it as a syndicated show for national television viewing.

In addition to the television show, Terry has come up with a weekly magazine for distribution to radio stations throughout the United States - entitled "The Soul Music Report."

Terry's bid to make it in the "mainstream" is a two-fold purpose.

"I want to make it because the business world is open to persons who believe in the free enterprise system...and more so, to get other young blacks into the American business mainstream."

And the native Clevelander stresses: "I don't believe in declaring 'I'm black...give me a chance.' I say give Terry Wood a chance to prove his ability."

WHEN TERRY explained his ideas and aspirations, he said: "If you think I have something worthy of making the news columns, fine; but don't think I came here looking for a news promo just because I'm black. I'm darn proud of my black American heritage, and I'll prove an American, black or white, can make it if he has the drive and belief in himself."

Terry has a message too. It reads: "It is my most sincere desire that the materialization of these projects ('It's Hip' and the Soul Music Report) will prove motivational and inspirational to others."

"A word to my brothers and sisters. Being black in America today does not restrict a man's progress, if you think blackness will restrict you...then so be it." Persons between the ages of 18 and 21, articulate, well-dressed and with exceptional dancing ability, can join Terry Wood in his idea that being black in America "does not restrict a man's progress" - and are invited to take part in his "It's Hip" black variety television show.

AT THE SAME time, persons with journalistic ability - are also being sought by Romulus' "young man of action" to write the Soul Music Report.

And all it takes is "belief in yourself" and a phone call to Terry at 941-2453, any evening of the week.

Terry is married to the former Sherlie Henry of Toledo, Ohio. They have one daughter, April Renee, three months. "And we love her more than anything in the world."

The Woods lost their first born last year.

During his radio DJ days, and present bid to make it in the business world, Terry Woods always found time to get involved for the good of the community as a member of the Romulus Jaycees.

"IN THE JAYCEES we call ourselves young men of action; and through the organization, I've been able to develop myself as an individual while working to make my town a better place in which to live," Wood reiterated.

The Jaycees, a national organization for young men between the ages of 18 and 35, has a state membership of more than 12,000. Nationally, the Jaycees number more than 300,000.

But for the time being, Terry Wood is applying his Jaycee knowhow to making it in the "mainstream of the business world."

singing group who are scheduled to appear on his "It's Hip" black variety television show.

Festivals set for tourists

July in Michigan explodes with activity as colorful, exciting and varied as the traditional fireworks, according to the Michigan Tourist Council.

The patriotic month opens with the International Freedom Festival, July 1-4, an annual salute to both Canada's and America's Independence Days. Parades, power boat races, flea markets and a spectacular fireworks display are some of the festival highlights.

When it comes to fourth of July happenings, Michigan offers several categories from which to choose. On the water, there's Evert's Logging Day Celebration that centers around a log race down the Muskegon River. Inboard hydroplanes from the U.S. and Canada will compete for prizes in the Hydroplane Regatta at Ypsilanti, and canoeists will be exerting "paddle power" for first position in the Grand River Canoe Race at Lansing.

Alpena will hold their Strawberry Festival, Lowell will celebrate with an Arts and Crafts Show and the Jordan Valley Festival will be held at East Jordan. Perhaps the most significant event of the day will be the annual, Let Freedom Ring pageant at Henry Ford Museum, Dearborn, commemorating the signing of the Declaration of Independence.

Detroit's Ethnic Festival program for July has the Far Eastern contingent moving into the riverfront site behind Cobo Hall, 6-8; the Captive Nations Festival, 13-25; the Afro-American Festival, 20-22, and the Indian Festival, 27-29. The festivals offer visitors an authentic sampling of the world's cultures and a terrific good time.

Other festivals come in a variety of sizes and flavors throughout the month. Topping the list is the National Cherry Festival, July 9-14 at Traverse City. The festival incorporates three big parades, one of the largest band competitions in the midwest, a fabulous antique show and sale and numerous other activities - plus - cherry "goodies" galore.

The highlight (literally speaking) of this year's Blue Water Festival at Port Huron, July 9-15, will be the Great Wallenda walking the high-wire above the carnival midway. The festival's mammoth International Day Parade will include bands and drill teams from all over the U.S. and Canada and the youngsters will be able to meet TV's Jetson family in real life.

Pinconning will celebrate its status as "Michigan's Cheese Capital," July 11-14 with a variety of activities for the whole family to enjoy.

The National Blueberry Festival, July 12-15, at South Haven has scheduled bike races, a tennis tournament and women's golf tournament in addition to the usual festival fare.

Sumpter plans rec programs

A summer recreation program for children in Sumpter Township has been announced by Mrs. Kay Brown, director.

The summer recreational activities are being sponsored by the Young Women's Association of Sumpter Township, and will be held at the Pleasant Valley Church, Sumpter Road and Victoria Ave., Sumpter Township.

Mrs. Brown said the program will include arts and crafts for children ages five through 15 and baseball league programs for children seven through 18.

The arts and crafts programs will be on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Rev. Clarence Davies, pastor, is in charge of the baseball program.

For further information call Mrs. Brown at 461-6901.

Greenfield Village presents old 'summertime days'

The Old-Time Summer Festival at Greenfield Village in Dearborn, Michigan from July through Labor Day recreates the sights and sounds of bygone eras to assail visitors with the lively bustle of the past.

American history comes to life in myriad ways during the Festival. It lives in the muffled creak of a carriage and harness blending with the rhythmic beat of horses hooves on a cobbled lane. It lives in the almost-forgotten wail of an ancient steam locomotive whistle playing counterpoint to the cheerful toot of the famous Steamboat "Suwanee."

Most of all, it lives in the recreations of scenes from out of the past by the Greenfield Village Players.

In the Town Hall on the Village green, the Players present "Gaslight Melodies," a musical revue featuring popular songs and skits from the turn of the century performed in the manner of the period.

The talented troupe authentically duplicates the traveling shows of nearly a century ago that furnished rural areas with the only professional entertainment they had.

Not far away, if the visitor can believe his eyes, sits Benjamin Franklin pulling on his pipe and talking revolution with two Colonial ladies.

Near the courthouse where Abraham Lincoln practiced law as a young circuit-riding lawyer in Illinois, stands a platform draped in bunting. Here are re-enacted the famous 1858 debates between Lincoln and Stephen Douglas in their campaign for the Senate.

Minstrels roam the Village streets to carry visitors back in time to the strains of old-time ballads and authentic American folk tunes. Sometimes they gather a crowd at "Doc" Bryson's wagon for the Medicine Show. From the rear of this gaily painted vehicle, the "doc" extolls the virtues of his amazing cure-all Wizard Oil with entertaining help from his crew of charlatans. A scene out of the Old West.

All this - and more - happens against the background of early American in the Village. Everywhere, the visitor sees the Village animals roaming freely just as they did in rural communities years ago. Costumed craftsmen ply their ancient trades in still - operating crafts shops and even outdoors when the weather cooperates.

Beach concert set

The nationally famous Warren Covington and songstress "Katheer" will present two concerts at 5:30 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. July 1, in the Central Plaza at Metropolitan Beach along Lake St. Clair near Mt. Clemens.

Meadow Brook Festival opens with Van Cliburn

The Meadow Brook Music Festival will begin its tenth anniversary season 8:30 p.m. tomorrow at the Howard C. Baldwin Memorial Pavilion. Van Cliburn, pianist, will be the solo artist for the opening week.

The eight-week 1973 season is international in scope, with a galaxy of conductors from many countries, including Poland, The Netherlands, Japan, England, and Italy. In addition to classical programs, the Meadow Brook Festival will present evenings of jazz, folk, Sunday "pops," and ballet. The season runs until August 19.

The opening night program will feature the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, Sixteen Ehrlich conducting. In recognition of Sergei Rachmaninoff's centennial anniversary, Van Cliburn will play Rachmaninoff's second piano concerto. This performance will be repeated on the Saturday night concert, June 30.

The immortal Duke Ellington and his Orchestra will launch the Friday jazz series at 8:30 on June 29. Ellington, who absorbed the great jazz of this era and transformed it into the elegant and sophisticated style, has recently been invited to perform a concert of his music at Westminster Abbey this autumn.

Sunday, July 1, will be another opening week highlight of the Meadow Brook Music Festival. Peter Nero, with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra under the baton of Sixteen Ehrlich, will perform the world premiere of his new work for piano, rhythm, and orchestra. The second half of the program will feature the Peter Nero Trio in concert. The Sunday concert begins at 6:30.

All concerts are held at the Howard C. Baldwin Pavilion on the campus of Oakland University, Rochester, Mi.

Tickets for the Meadow Brook Music Festival are available at Hudson's, Grinnell's, Wayne State University, Macomb County Community College, and at the Festival box office. Phone orders may be placed at the Festival box office if charged to Master Charge or Bank Americard.

By HENRY CANTIN

"The Number," an agency designed to offer crisis-counseling and problem assistance - for drug-related problems, emotional crisis, family conflicts, problem pregnancies and others, will open in the Belleville area on Aug. 1.

The agency is to be locally staffed and locally funded and is in need of community support, said F. Robert Harkai, program director and member of the board of trustees composed of local residents. (The board of trustees presently is in the process of becoming a non-profit organization.)

A person with some urgent need for a good listener or counselor can simply call The Number.

Harkai also said a back-up staff will be available for persons needing face-to-face counseling on a short term basis once the immediate crisis is passed, and persons calling The Number may be referred to other agencies (clinics, hospitals and professional counselors).

The Number (which will be announced later) also plans to provide the following:

- ongoing counseling groups which persons may be referred. These will be led by qualified facilitators;

- drug analysis service by which persons may anonymously determine the content of a specific capsule or tablet;

— educational resource people for schools, families and community organizations. THE BOARD of trustees are the following local residents: Rev. David Lee, Rev. Wilson Wood, James Richendollar, Jeff Gillian, Betty Jarrett, Charlene Harris, Joe Reed Jr., Gil Thom and Robert Harkai, program director.

The proposed operating budget for The Number is approximately $9,000, including costs for space rental, director's salary and telephone, office and publicity expenses, Harkai said.

"You listen to me for a change!"

"I've been very patient with you, Mom, but it's time I spoke up. Why do you run all over town looking for good buys when you have the greatest catalogue of values in your hands . . . that's right! The Classified Section of this newspaper!

"There's that valuable time you've been wasting . . . time that you and I could be spending together at home. You can study the Classified Ads and do all your pre-shopping over a cup of coffee right here at home. As far as selection . . . you'll find things as big as a house and small as a stroller in the Classified Ads.

"So turn to the Classified Ads right now, Mom. Instead of coming home all tired out from fighting traffic and crowds, you can shop right here and still have plenty of pep to enjoy your family!"

Atchinson Ford
never met a deal he couldn't beat.

Oh, sure, you're going to read about lower prices. Once in a long while, maybe, they'll even be legitimate.

But how can you beat the lowest feasible price, coupled with our highest possible trade allowance? When you also consider this: we deliver a car in flawless condition, with every pre-delivery function performed above and beyond factory instructions, and guaranteed above and beyond the factory warranty. In effect you get a free mechanic for one full year.

The price of a new car doesn't all go onto the bill of sale. Unless you buy from us.

It's about time a car dealer delivered more than just a car. *

For career information call BILL BELCHER 522-2900 NORWOOD COOKS There were 670,000 cooks and chefs working in the United States in 1970. By 1990, according to the Department of Labor, there will be over one million. Why is such a sharp increase expected? Several reasons. Population growth, for one. An increasingly larger, and more affluent middle class, for another. And the astonishing popularity of fast food outlets. The latter have established themselves as an excellent springboard for young people interested in culinary careers. Many start as short order cooks for fast food outlets and jump, after they pick up a few years experience, into highly paid positions as assistants to head chefs at some of the better kitchens in major cities. Another way for a young person to get a job in a top kitchen is to enter one of the many private schools offering courses in food preparation. These schools are generally very good and very expensive. Fortunately, there is another way to go. And it doesn't cost nearly as much. In fact, students at this school get paid. The school is called the Quartermaster school. It's located at Fort Lee, Virginia and is part of Today's Army. Aspiring Army cooks receive countless courses in every aspect of food preparation. These include: course, meat identification, cake and pastry baking, small quantity cooking, garrison mess operations and field mess operations. Most of this is taught during the initial eight-week cooking course offered at Fort Lee. More importantly though is the diversification of dishes Army cooks now have the responsibility of providing. Today's Army is preparing today's dishes for its young soldiers. This means chitlins and collard greens for the Blacks, manicotti and lasagna for the Italians and tortillas and burritos for Mexicans. It's the kind of experience that comes in handy later. Aside from the great formal training and practical work experience, Army cooks make pretty good money, around $307 to start. And salary increases with experience. The Army also provides free room and board, complete medical and dental care and 30 paid vacation days annually. For more information, see your local Army representative. MILITARY COUNSELING Wayne Post Office 3716 Newberry Wayne 722-3388 or 729-3920 OR 405 MAIN STREET Belleville 699-2664
